

CUTTING RESILIENT NETWORKS

CAI XING SHI

We define the (random) k -cut number of a rooted graph to model the difficulty of the destruction of a resilient network. The process is as the cut model of Meir and Moon except now a node must be cut k times before it is destroyed. We will discuss the k -cut number on paths and complete binary trees.