

Symmetries and stable homology computations

Markus Szymik

The symmetric groups, the general linear groups, and the automorphism groups of polynomial rings all fit into a uniform context of symmetries of algebraic structures. I will explain how to organise such groups for homology computation, in particular, how to exploit the structure that arises when the number of generators or variables tends towards infinity.